ORATION BY GOVERNOR POTHIER.

Delivered at the Exercises in Bristol Opera House Following the Parade Yesterday Morning.

In welcoming the audience at the Opera House, and introducing the Governor, the Chief Marshal said that there was cause for rejoicing in Bristol on account of the fine weather for the celebration.

The heroes of which I speak are not those who attain sudden fame by some single act of bravery which appeals to the human senses. They are of the class who, day by day, perform their duties to their state, to their families and their fellow men, seeking not fame for itself but striving to fulfill their obligations, civic and social.

The speaker then paid tribute to the laborers and mechanics, in the mines of the country, the engineers on our railroads, the navigators crossing the sea, the life-savers along our shores, the nurses in the hospitals, and homes for the unfortunate, the teachers in schools and colleges, the missionaries who offer their lives in carrying the gospel to the heathen.

It is customary on this day of a glorious anniversary for public speakers to recall the deeds of the great figures in our history, and the stirring events that preceded and followed the Declaration of Independence.

We are proud of the institutions that have sprung up and grown and extended their influence with the development of our American form of government, and that have placed our citizenship on a level attained by no other Nation on the face of the globe.

In this age of activity, of business energy, of scientific evolution, of the perfection of system, of the rapid uncovering of latent resources, we find ourselves occupied almost exclusively in an effort to keep pace with the rapid strides made in all directions.

times unobserved and often unknown, yet no less usefully [and freely given than those that have marked the darkest periods of the Nation's history.

Heroes we have in all our walks of life, as deserving of praise and public recognition as those who fought and bled at Bunker Hill for independence, or who gave up their lives at Gettysburg that this government of the people might not perish from the earth.

The most artistic and elaborately treated decoration in town was without doubt that shown all through the grounds and grand old Colonial home of Col. Colt.

The facade of the Colonial masterpiece—while beautified by day, was bewildering by night. Garlands of vari-colored roses were entwined to the full height of the massive columns, arched over at the top and over the entrance.

There is a mother in that little home; a poor mother, who is performing a noble service for her country in rearing her children with a keen regard for their future usefulness.

The hope which we all entertain for the future is that it shall sustain us through it all. It is the hope that encourages the captain of industry to extend his operations, and that sustains the spirit of the day laborer.

lesson which reminds us that if we do our best we fulfill every requirement of life, we are heroes in the highest sense of the word

100th ANNIVERSARY LINDEN PLACE

It was Celebrated Yesterday in Royal Style by the Entertainment of Hundreds of Guests at the Famous Mansion.

The celebration of the 100th anniversary of the DeWolf mansion, the ancestral home of Col. S. P. Colt, now known as "Linden Place," was one of the principal features of Independence Day. Col. Colt entertained hundreds of his friends from Bristol and all over the State in royal style, the presence of Governor and Mrs. Pothier as guests of the day lending added dignity to the occasion.

During the evening a large party of guests was present also and after the display of fireworks dancing was enjoyed in the carriage house, and refreshments were served. The festivities were continued until a late hour.

The most artistic and elaborately treated decoration in town was without doubt that shown all through the grounds and grand old Colonial home of Col. Colt.

We understand that this is the first time that an electrically controlled floral decoration has been devised and successfully executed, and the effect was one of gorgeous magnificence and richness of color combined with the highest quality of artistic merit.

The building itself was outlined on all its corners and pilasters with electricity, in National colors, the principal motive of the design being to emphasize rather than detract from the architectural features of the structure.

The new carriage house, was decorated in flags on the exterior, and the interior walls completely paneled with hand painted canvasses, very artistic and harmonious.

A frieze of palms formed a border to the paintings while festoons of lights made a brilliant setting for the dancing party.

A transformation in out-of-door garden effects was effected by the intermingling of electrically lighted flowers among the real, producing a beautiful effect. A temporary pergola with fluted columns was erected over the bed at the rear of the house.

Following is the list of Paine's fireworks discharged at Linden Place, last night: 1—Salute of two nine inch aerial guns, ascending into the air with very loud reports.

- 6—Ascent of 13 inch repeating bombs. Three distinct breaks and color effects. 7—Four batteries of colored stars, displaying various tints as they rise into the sky.

Death of Bishop McVickar.

Rt. Rev. William Neilson McVickar, Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of Rhode Island, died of pneumonia, at his summer home in Beverly, Mass., at 4.30 o'clock last Tuesday afternoon, in the 67th year of his age.

The church was filled to overflowing, among the congregation being clergymen of all denominations and six bishops of other dioceses. They were Bishop James H. Van Buren of Porto Rico, Bishop Sidney T. Partridge of Japan, Bishop Arthur O. A. Hall of Vermont, Bishop Ohauncey B. Brewster of Connecticut, Bishop Thomas F. Gailor of Tennessee and Bishop Robert Codman, Jr., of Maine.

The pall bearers were Rev. Frank Appleton, Rev. Alva E. Carpenter, Rev. F. I. Collins, Rev. Charles E. Denfield, Rev. Stanley O. Hughes, Rev. Joseph M. Hobbs, Rev. Charles A. Meader, Rev. William Pressey, Rev. George V. Dicke and Rev. A. M. Hilliker.

The Bishop's health had been good until about three years ago, when he had a severe attack of illness, from which he never fully recovered. Among the last of his official acts was administering the rite of confirmation to a class in St. Michael's Church about a month ago, at which time his feeble health was apparent.

Why we advertise Lenox Soap. We hope, by advertising, to induce thousands of women, who have never used Lenox Soap, to give it a trial. If we can do that, the advertising will pay; for a woman who buys one cake of Lenox Soap and gives it a fair trial, is almost certain to keep on buying it.

for 22 years. On the death of Bishop Clark on Sept. 7, 1903, he became Bishop of Rhode Island. Bishop McVickar was never married but lived with his sister, Miss Eweretta C. McVickar, in Providence, who survives him as well as a sister, Mrs. P. L. Hall of Riddington Hall, Nottinghamshire, England.
